

PLAGIARISM

On submission of manuscripts in the form of either research or review articles to Madras Agricultural Journal, the author agrees and approves that “content reproduced in the manuscript are properly quoted or cited with the original source. If manuscript found plagiarized content of more than 30%, will be rejected. The author(s) are liable to be prosecuted against plagiarism as per the government law in force.

All the manuscripts submitted for publication in MAJ have to pass through an initial screening and will be checked through plagiarism detection software (Grammarly).

The journal strictly follows UGC Guidelines for plagiarism check .